

Workshop

Communication is a Core Clinical Skill

Date: From 16 December 2020, every two weeks for 10 times

Time: 9:00-11:00 a.m.

Venue: College of Medicine

Workshop moderator: Dr. Sameerah Abdulrahman, Clinical Skills Coordinator

Number of participants in each workshop: 20 faculty staff

Learning objectives:

1. Explain the essential need of teaching communication skills in medical education.
2. Compare between traditional history taking and Calgary Cambridge guide for medical interview
3. Choose to teach (patient centered interview depending on Calgary Cambridge guide)
4. Demonstrate communication skills for:
  - Establishing initial rapport
  - Identify list of patients problem
  - Questioning technique
  - Attentive listening
  - Summarization

Timetable

Time	Conducted action	Name of activity
9:00-9:30	Why teaching communication skills is an essential component of modern medical curriculum?
9:30-10:00	The difference between Calgary Cambridge guided medical interview and tradition medical history
10:00-10:15	Discussion
10:15-10:30	Activity 1	Role play (demonstration of skills for: Establishing initial rapport Identify list of patients problem
10:30-11:00	Activity 2	Role play (demonstration of skills for Questioning technique Attentive listening Summarization